Autistic Spectrum Conditions.

The definition. Autistic Spectrum Conditions (A.S.C's) belong to a group of disorders known as 'developmental disorders'. They are in fact characterized by problems with social and communications skills of varying degrees. We Asperger/Autistics do often display some unusual learning, reacting to different sensations and paying attention. People with ASC's also tend to repeat certain behaviours and have difficulties when they are required to change their usual daily routines and activities. Autistic Spectrum Conditions are commonly said to start in childhood and last for the whole of the persons life. However there are many new theories as to the cause(s) of these Conditions, and there will always going to be a controversial debate as to the exact causation. When most people meet others, judgments are made about them the very fact of looking can for most, give clues to the other persons age and even their status, tone of voice and facial expression allowing one to note if that person is happy, or sad and therefore you can respond accordingly. Not all people have this ability, we people with Asperger Syndrome/Autism, in fact all A.S.C's find it much a more difficult to read these signals, the signals that most people take for granted. As a direct result of this it is more difficult to communicate and interact with others. There has been a reported explosion worldwide of cases of autism over the last 10 years or so, with considerable speculation to why it may be, but with no conclusive proof emerging around and one particular theory. Yet studies have ruled out the speculation that this rise is (entirely) attributable to an improvement in diagnostic methods. Autism is slowly but surely evolving in the publics understanding, however more needs to be done to create more awareness.

A siblings poem.

My Brother

The frosty, unwelcoming stares,
The "what a badly behaved child" glares,
The tuts escaping the onlookers lips,
The interfering folk dishing out parenting tips.
Isn't it human nature to sympathise with other beings?
Why do they not understand?
Touching, Talking, Playing, Singing

Even holding my mum's out stretched hand,
It's like an ongoing battle,
Over coming everyday things,
His minds like a heavily guarded castle,
Not knowing quite when he's gonna throw an anger fling.
The constant talking about the same old things,
His playstation 2 game the lord of the rings,
It's something I've learnt to put up with,
It's just his way of learning to live.

He'll always find communicating confusing,
As well as "fitting in",
Sometimes I find him quite amusing,
With his clumsy in-Ability to say exactly what he means.
This syndrome that he's labelled with,
The way in which he is,
He'll always be my little bro,
Sealed with a big kiss.

Blue Badge Scheme and DLA forms.

The Disabled Person's Parking Badge (the Blue Badge scheme) You should apply for the higher rate mobility component if your child has a physical disability which means he or she are unable or are virtually unable to walk. For families with a child on the Autistic Spectrum (ASD) THE Blue Badge can be extremely helpful, enabling the family to park near to local amenities.– contact your local council to check what happens if are in an area which may be exempt from the scheme

You must also remember that it's hard to describe autism within the questions and boundaries of the actual application form, this can be the case for sections within a standard benefit form, however it does not mean that you are not entitled to sup port C.A.P.A.A.S. Members will I am sure where possible offer help, as may the Citizen's Advice Bureau be able, many parents may find completing forms like a DLA form quite problematic, it is often because it concentrates on the difficulties that your particular child has. It is then for most parents a time when they actually realize actually just how much help and support the child needs. Often many families question if they are entitled to claim this benefit, assuming that it is for needier families. Remember though that it is very important that your child has a right to a claim, remember to try to get the advice of others who are familiar with the forms when filling them in.

Sensory Intergration Difficulties.

What is sensory intergration

All of our senses work together, each one of these works with our others enabling us to form a composite picture of who we are and where we are physically and enable us to work out what is going on around us. Sensory intergration is a critical function within the brain which is responsible for the production of the composite picture.

What are some signs of Sensory:

Intergration Difficulties may include :-

- 1, Activity levels may be unusually high, or even unusually low.
- 2, Physical clumsiness, apparent carelessness.
- 3, Easily distracted.
- 4, Delays in academic achievement.
- 5, Oversensitive for instance to touch,

movement, sights, and sounds .

6, Under sensitive to touch, movement, sights, and sounds.

7, Impulsive, seemingly lacking self control.

8, May have difficulties making transitions from one situation to another.

9, Social and emotional problems.

10, Delays in speech, language or motor skills.

11, Poor self concept.

C.A.P.A.A.S. Kidzone.

Here is an experiment for you to try sometime , if you want to do this experiment ask an adult to do it with you

Make your own Secret Messages.

Have you heard about secret messages written in code I'm sure you have? But have you heard of secret messages you can write with invisible ink. For this experiment you will need : A lemon, saucer, water, teaspoon, toothpick, white paper, lamp.

Caption for picture

How to it:

squeeze the lemon juice into the saucer.

Add a few drops of water and mix well with the spoon.

Dip the toothpick into the lemon juice mix. Not too much or you'll make invisible blobs!

Use the toothpick to write a message on ordinary white paper. Thick paper works best.

When it dries the writing will be invisible.

Heat the paper by holding it with the written side down near to a light bulb. Always let an adult help you. Also always be careful not to get any of the juice near your eyes, wash your hands .

What happens then- well while it heats up the writing slowly becomes brown and visible , then the words appear on the paper.

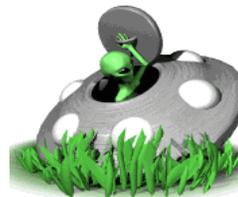

Why it happens

Lemon juice has compounds of carbon, these compounds have almost no colour when you dissolve them in water. When you heat them the carbon compounds break down and turn black.

The Aliens have landed!

Well it looks like they have!

Tell us about your pets: here Matt writes about his pet snakes

Hi Steve,

Snakes well they are very easy to keep and give a lot of enjoyment especially if you have sensory problems cos they are very physical pets and great to touch. They suit people with special needs very well and children love them too.

You only have to monitor there heat and change the water regularly, they don't need to be fed that often usually once a week although they can go along time without food, but will soon tell you when they are hungry cos the behave differently and some become a little aggressive. I would only recommend these types of snake to experienced keepers like myself cos I'm not scared of being bitten, now they have done it a couple of times.

The best first time snake is a Corn snake, very friendly and placid and tend to be rather nervous but are still ok being pulled about by children. I would suggest buying a book on keeping snakes before you get a snake as a pet to understand all there needs. You would have to feed them dead mice, not for the squeamish.

2 foot young Californian King Snake (male) very aggressive and a 2 foot young Western Hog Nose snake called Grumpy (male) venomous.

I also have 2 European Green Toads but they haven't got names cant really tell them apart. they do get a bit noisy at night though!

Anti Social Behaviour Order (ASBO's)

Anti Social Behaviour Order (ASB's) has the potential of striking fear in every parent of an Asperger Syndrome / Autistic young person regarding inappropriate behaviour.

Behaviours that can result in an ASBO are:

- ◆ Misuse of public space- Drug / substance misuse and dealing / Street drinking/Begging / Prostitution / Kerb crawling / Abandoned cars/ Vehicle related nuisance and inappropriate vehicle use.
- ◆ Disregard for Community / Personal wellbeing - Rowdy behaviour / Noise Nuisance / Hoax calls? Animal related problems.

Environmental damage- Criminal damage / vandalism / Graffiti / Litter / Fly tipping.

ASBO's can be made against any person aged 10 or over, who has committed a Criminal standard beyond reasonable doubt, and shall have effect for not less than 2 years or until further order. However there are mandatory disregards including Mental Health problems and alcoholism. The Courts will not enforce an Order if a person has medical problems with understanding and controlling actions. A complaint must be made within six months of the offending behaviour, and the complainant can give evidence via a third person, that is professional evidence given by Police / Council Officers can be 'hearsay' evidence. Wherever possible a team of involved practitioners, including a compulsory Social Worker, will meet to avoid an ASBO. Actions considered before an Application for an ASBO are Warning letters; Problem Solving/ Intervention; Acceptable Behaviour Contracts (ABC'S); AND Final ASB Notice). This information does give relief, but parents are still aware that a young person with AS or any ASC is vulnerable as a perceived injustice can result in retaliation and possibly uncontrolled actions? Most young people with AS / ASC's do not fit Social Services Criteria and problems will arise when the young person is taken to the police station and the time taken to establish that the young person has a recognised condition.
